BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U P)— President Roosevelt reported to congress today that since passage of the lend-lease act last March $324,563,749 in war materials and other essential supplies and services have been transferred to nations resisting the Axis.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A proposal that the United States government arm all merchant ships was made today by Sen. Guffey (D) Pa., strong Roosevelt supporter, as both branches of congress reassembled for the first time since President Roosevelt delivered his historic "shoot-on-sight" speech.

While high administration officials indicated that the next step in America's foreign policy will be determined by Adolf Hitler's action to the president's warning, some administration members of congress pressed for aggressive action.

"I'm for arming all merchant ships, not merely with deck guns such as they carried prior to the World war, but with the most modern anti-aircraft guns," Duffey said.

"Further, I think that the government itself should furnish the ships with these weapons, even though privately owned, as that is another step in our national defense policy."

The house reassembled after a four-weeks' cessation of business for the chief purpose of speeding

His Flying Fists Provide Clue To Robbery Series

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A stranger whose fists were quicker than the eyes of two holdup men was credited by police today with solving a long list of robberies and landing two alleged parole violators back in cells.

The stranger, identified only as a "man from Lancaster," was having a tire repaired yesterday in the gasoline station of Clinton M. Barker.

When the two holdup men appeared they took Barker's money changer and asked the stranger for his wallet. Instead he handed them a checkbook. While they examined it he struck hard and fast with both fists.

The bandits fled, leaving a hotel key in their abandoned car.

Police later traced them through the hotel. They gave the names of Holly Ellis, 29, and Richard Douthy, 23.

About $8 out of $15 taken from Barker was recovered.

Women in some subway trains became hysterical and smashed windows with the heels of their shoes, but police reported no serious disorder.

STAGE SET FOR CONFERENCE ON DEFENSE GOODS

150 Industrialists From Area To Meet Tomorrow To Study Contract Awards.

With the two-fold purpose of keeping small industrial plants operating and speeding up defense production, officials of 28 of the nation's largest industries will confer in Mansfield Tuesday with representatives of nearly 150 industrial plants in northcentral Ohio.

Scheduled for afternoon and evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, the defense clinic will be the second held in Ohio. A similar session is being conducted in Columbus today for nine central Ohio counties.

Coming here with the 28 industrial heads will be representatives of the OPM Office of Training Within Industry, the Ohio State Defense council, and the Ohio State Employment service, and army and navy officers.

Out of the clinic here is expected to come a wider distribution of defense orders, giving plants with adequate equipment in this area a chance to obtain smaller defense orders to keep their employes on the job when priorities limit the amount of raw materials available for domestic production.

The leading industrialists in the caravan hold defense contracts worth millions of dollars and are ready to sub-let contracts to step up production. At the same time, plants in Mansfield or neighbor-

STABS WAITRESS

Bus Boy Inflicts 15 Wounds With Butcher Knife.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Dorothy Stanley, a 24-year-old waitress at the Columbus municipal airport, battled for her life today with 15 stab wounds in her body, which sheriff's deputies said were inflicted by a Filipino bus boy who became enraged because she refused to speak to him

Nichasio Rivera, 25, was held in county jail as the welder of the 15-inch butcher knife with which Miss Stanley was attacked, according to Deputy Sheriff Hugh Liggett.

The officer said that Rivers, who had known Miss Stanley in California, approached the girl as she was working, and with the statement, "You won't speak to me," stabbed her repeatedly before patrons of the restaurant could subdue him.

THOUSANDS TO JAM CITY FOR BUSIEST WEEK

3 Conventions, Series of Other Crowd-Drawing Events on Schedule.

PARADES BIG FEATURES

4,000 Moose Members, Bankers, Sewage Engineers To Meet Here During Week.

Mansfield should be spelled "Mecca" this week.

For an unusual series of events, including three conventions, is scheduled to take place in the city during the next six days, each of which will bring visitors running into the thousands here, even as in the olden days pilgrims traveled by the thousands to Mecca.

Three of the events are scheduled for Tuesday, which makes that the biggest day of a big week

Tuesday marks the opening of the Retailers for Defense campaign, in which Mansfield stores, along with stores throughout the nation, will launch a campaign to sell defense savings stamps Tied in with it will be the annual Fall Opening of the Mansfield Retail Merchants' association. If you even saw a woman on the trail of a bargain, then you know how many of them will flock to the downtown section Tuesday. That's event No. 1, a sort of two-ply affair.

Event No. 2 is the defense round-up, which will bring to Mansfield some 150 industrialists from a 50-mile area to confer with representatives of the OPM, the army, the navy and prime defense contract holders who want to sub-let contracts. State-wide interest has developed in this session, since it means much to the "small business" of the state, threatened with curtailed operations due to priorities, unless defense contracts are obtained.

These sessions will continue through afternoon and evening.

Event No. 3 ties in with No. 1. It's the Retailers for Defense rally in Central park, with a short parade, in which Company F of the new Ohio State Guard and the Mansfield high school band will march, to be followed by speeches in Central park.

So Event 3 ought to be big, too —you know how we all go for parades!

For event No. 4—on Wednesday—more than 400 bankers from the Mansfield district will gather in Mansfield for their annual convention.

All Ohio will have a part in event No 5—the state convention of Moose lodges It opens Thursday, and is expected to bring around 4,000 visitors to the city. Already, bunting and banners are going up as the town decorates for the convention.

On the same day as the opening of the Moose convention there will

Merchants Open Drive Today To Sell U. S. Defense Stamps

Mansfield merchants joined Uncle Sam today in a campaign to sell defense stamps as they completed plans for a Defense Stamps rally at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in Central park.

About 70 retailers opened the stamp sale in connection with the annual "Fall Opening" week to introduce new fall goods. Stores which are offering the stamps will be designated by posters in the windows.

Booths have been set up in a number of stores for the stamp sales, while others have special counter decorations. The stamps are available in denominations of 10, 25, and 50 cents, $1 and $5. Purchasers will receive a card to which they can attach the stamps. When the buyer has $18.75 worth of them, he can trade them for a $25 Defense Saving bond.

A parade in which the Mansfield Senior High band and members of Mansfield's State Guard unit will participate will precede the rally Tuesday night in the park. The line of march will start at Park avenue west and Mulberry street and follow Park avenue to the park. The band will play at the park and there will be brief talks.

Forty-five Mansfield stores will participate in a Defense Stamp Window contest which will open at 7 p. m. Tuesday and close Saturday night. The Retail Merchants' association will award $40 in prizes to winners. Contest details appear in a page advertisement in this issue of The News-Journal. War Games Block Death Message for Mansfielder

Military Restrictions on Roads in Maneuvers Area Snag Efforts to Notify Girl of Mother's Demise.

Military restrictions on highway travel during war maneuvers in Louisiana today continued to thwart efforts to forward to a Mansfield girl, enroute to Camp Beauregard, the tragic news that her mother is dead.

Miss Margaret Hochsheid, 23, of 313 West Fourth street, who left Mansfield Friday to visit Corp. Herbert Southworth, stationed at Camp Beauregard, doesn't know yet that her mother, Mrs. Dessie Hochsheid, died Saturday evening.

Members of the Hochsheid family have been successful in getting word of Mrs. Hochsheid's death to Corp. Southworth but so far he has been unable to contact Miss Hochsheid. She is somewhere in the maneuver zone and has not reached Camp Beauregard.

Corp. Southworth is not in the maneuver field and is expected to tell Miss Hochsheid of her mother's death when she arrives at the camp sometime late today

All Saturday night, members of the Hochsheid and Southworth families attempted to reach Miss Hochsheid at the many towns along her route. All efforts were unsuccessful.

Mrs. Hochsheid died unexpectedly of a heart attack Saturday at 5:30 p. m. at the home of Corp Southworth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chase Southworth, 637 Bowman street, where she had gone to await her daughter's return.

Physicians say death was due to a heart attack. Mrs. Hochsheid, it was learned, had been in poor health for some time but had not been considered seriously ill.

The body was removed to the Jones Memorial. No funeral plans will be made until Miss Hochsheid has been reached.

RESUME WORK

75 Return To Jobs at Lorain Shipbuilding Yards.

LORAIN — (AP) — About 75 workers went back to jobs today at the American Shipbuilding company, police estimated, and CIO officials announced their members would return tomorrow.

The yard, employing 1,100 men on naval and commercial construction, had been closed since last Tuesday by a strike which begin five days earlier. The CIO called the strike in protest against lumping the Lorain yard with six other yards of American Shipbuilding company.

In a labor board finding that American Federation of Labor unions represented a majority of the workers. The CIO contends it represents most of the Lorain workers.

On an appeal yesterday from Sidney Hillman, OPM coordinator, to return to jobs and await negotiations, the CIO leaders ordered men back to work tomorrow. The AFL leaders, who previously had told members to return Wednesday, told them to return today.

Roosevelt Calls For Unity In Message To Legion Head

(By Associated Press)

MILWAUKEE — President Roosevelt, in his first major statement since his announcement last Thursday that the U. S. navy would "shoot first" at Axis war vessels in American defensive waters, called, in a message to the American Legion convention today for "unity of purpose, unity of sentiment and . . . sacrifices."

In a message to the Legion's commander, he said the threat to our national security and to our way of life is not imaginary but real."

Secretary of Navy Frank Knox delivered the message to Warner on the convention platform and warner read it to the delegates.

The president asserted that "to meet adequately the steps taken by agressor nations . . . there must be unity of purpose, unity of sentiment and a keen desire to make whatever sacrifices may be necessary in order to obtain our objective."

"Knowing the keen interest manifest by the Legion in current and momentous events both at home and abroad," said Mr. Roosevelt, "I need not remind you of the serious situation that is facing the world and its possible effect on the future of our own country.

"You who have served in our armed forces during time of war know best the stern realities of war and consequently would much prefer peace. However, you also well appreciate the danger in our

Air Battles Raging Around Leningrad as Ukraine Pincers Close.

(By Associated Press)

Threats to Russia's second and third greatest cities heightened today as the Germans reported they had slashed through Leningrad's "defense" front at one point and the Russians admitted that a Nazi pincers movement was tightening the ring around Kiev.

Simultaneously, observers at Ankara forecast a sea-borne German drive against the Russian Crimea, site of the big Soviet Black sea naval base of Sebastopol. There were reports that the Germans had ordered all Rumanian and Bulgarian Black sea ports closed to commercial shipping.

The Nazi order capped repeated rumors that both German and Italian troops were being massed in Bulgarian ports for an attempt to land forces behind Russia's Dnieper river defense line in the Ukraine.

Dispatches from Sofia said partial mobilization of the Bulgarian army had been ordered for today.

Advices reaching London said the Germans had already thrust into the Perekop area, on the thin neck of land connecting the Crimea with the U. S. S. R. mainland. Previously, the Germans had claimed the capture of Zhaporoze, on the main railway line connecting Sebas Topol with northern sources of supply.

While spectacular mass air battles raged over Leningrad, the British reported they were rushing RAF pilots into the 86-day-old struggle on the eastern front. London newspapers said the first British fliers to arrive in Russia, several squadrons strong, already had gone into action, presumably in defense of Leningard.

The Daily Telegraph said it was reasonable to assume that the newly-arrived RAF unit was only "the advance guard of a large fighter contingent destined for the eastern front." Prime Minister

Winston Churchill announced last week that hundreds of RAF fighter planes were being sent to the U. S. S. R.

With the battle of Leningrad flaming toward a climax, the Germans quoted Soviet prisoners as saying that defenders of the old czarist capital were dynamiting huge blocks of buildings in the city to clear the line for artillery and machine-gun fire in a street-by-street defense.

In the skies, the Russians reported 100 planes engaged in the latest duel, with the Germans fleeing after losing 17 aircraft.

Adolf Hitler's high command declared that the encirclement of Leningrad had been "further tightened in stubborn fighting for possession of modernly constructed fortifications."

Soviet dispatches conceded the loss of several settlements on the bank of the river "T" at the approaches to the city, but said Red army troops had recaptured three of them.

"Great offensive operations in the East are progressing successfully," the German high command said. "Repeated enemy counter-attacks supported by heavy tanks collapsed."

While acknowledging a grave new threat to Kiev, the Ukraine capital, the Russians declared that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red armies were hurling the Germans back in a smashing counter-offensive on the central front.

Soviet troops were reported within 12 miles of burned and wrecked Smolensk, key city on the Napoleonic road to Moscow, with Russian artillery shelling German positions around it. Other Red forces were said to be fighting near Yartzevo, 27 miles northeast of Smolensk.

On the southern front, the Russians said Hitler's invasion armies north and south of Kiev were trying to meet behind the city. Only last Friday, the Russians admitted they had withdrawn from Chernigov, 80 miles north of Kieve between the Dnieper and Desna rivers.

The Soviet communique said the rail junction of Kremenchug, 175 miles below Kiev, had been evacuated after days of fierce fighting and thus the Russians admitted for the first time a German crossing of their natural bastion in the Ukraine, the Dnieper river.

However, the Germans some time ago claimed they had crossed the lower Dneiper and captured Zaporozhe, 140 miles southeast of Kremenchug.

In Helsinki, Vaino Tanner, minister of trade and communications and leader of the dominant Social Democratic party in Finland, declared there are "good hopes of peace in the nearest future."

He stressed that Finland was an ally of Germany "only by accident" and that Finland would fight only as long as her interests demanded.

The British had virtually no aerial activity on their home front. Only one plane was reported officially to have dropped bombs on a northeast coast town, during the night, causing slight damage and some casualties.

But the week-end found British bombers ranging from Norway to the Mediterranean.

Official British accounts told of the firing and damaging of at least eight Axis ships in a Mediterranean convoy, to sinking of a German supply ship off Norway and the possible bomb damaging of the German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst at Brest, France.

For Germany, DNB, official news agency, said a German plane sank a steamer of 10,000-12,000 tons off the English coast Sunday night.

Seeds of revolt against the German conquest continued to sprout over the week-end.

In Croatia, the explosion of four time bombs in Zagreb's central telephone exchange and blasts from machine gun snipers elsewhere in the capital wounded two score persons, including a German army major.

A German lieutenant, four Nazi soldiers and a German telephone operator also were injured.

In German-occupied Norway, between 250 and 300 labor union leaders were reported to have been arrested in the Oslo region following labor troubles which led to the German decree of a civil state of siege last week.

Advices reaching Stockholm said a mass strike in the Oslo district by 40,000 workers precipitated the decree.

In South America, Argentina's congressional "Dies committee" kept a close watch on the activities of Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, Nazi emissary and friend of Adolf Hitler, and pressed its demand for the expulsion of German Ambassador Edmound Von Thermann on charges of "overstepping the bounds of a diplomat and abusing his privileges."

On the North African front, long quiet, action flamed anew. An official statement said Italian and German troops captured a British outpost near Sidi Belgasem, east of siege-bound Tobruk in a fierce fight in which the British lost an unspecified number of dead and prisoners.

British general headquarters in Cairo gave another version of the African fighting, declaring that two Axis reconnaissance columns, paced by tanks and armored cars, had been routed after knifing 35 miles into Egypt from the Libyan frontier zone.

The Axis invaders were reported to have fallen back into Libya, with the British still in pursuit.

The British also reported that Australian and British troops had executed "a series of brilliant raids" against Axis positions around Tobruk, which has been under siege since last April.

In East Africa, the Italians said, a strong Fascist contingent inflicted heavy losses on the British in fierce fighting around Lake Tana, northern Ethiopia.

Meanwhile, Pope Pius XII addressed a world-wide appeal to Catholics to pray during the month of October for a shortening of the war.

Seized Nations Face Famine

That the people of Europe's conquered countries cannot look to their German overlords for food this winter, is indicated in the statement of a Nazi government spokesman who said Germany "rejected all responsibility for feeding the populations of occupied countries." England and the United States, he said, must accept such obligation and responsibility. Pictured above are French refugee children and oldsters enjoying a scanty meal which may become far scantier with the coming of dreaded winter.

Born in Green county, Pennsylvania, he worked for the B. and O. railroad for 40 years before his retirement in August. He returned to Mansfield last May, after working in Zanesville for the past nine year.

Mr. Sellers was a member and elder of the Central Presbyterian church of Zanesville, a member of Mansfield lodge 35 F. and A. M., a member of the Mansfield Council 94 R. and S. M., and a past high priest of the Mansfield chapter 28 R. A. M.

He is survived by his wife, Carrie S. Sellers, and a daughter, Mary Virginia Sellers, both of Cincinnati; one brother, Charles Sellers, Fairmont, W. Va., and one sister, Mrs. Susanna Wells of Orlando, Florida.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the Finefrock funeral home with Rev. H. D. Borley, former pastor of the Zanesville Central Presbyterian church, and Rev. D. N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Mansfield, officiating.

Burial will be in Bluemont cemetery, Grafton, W. Va.

final action on the $3,500,000,000 tax bill, but non-interventionists were expected to seize the opportunity to attack the president's foreign policy, with administration forces ready to reply.

Although non-intervention senators have assailed Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to sink Axis submarines wherever found in American defensive waters, full dress debate may await the return of some absent members of the non-intervention bloc and a meeting to determine policy.

Sen. Nye (R) N. D., non-interventionist, charged that the administration plans to put both the navy and air force in the European war.

"I think that their plans call for putting the navy and air force actively in the war, just as quickly as possible, much sooner than four months from now," said Nye. "Eventually, of course, that would be followed by an American expeditionary force."

While some administration senators believe that revision of the neutrality act to permit arming of merchantmen and to permit American ships to enter combat zones is certain, Nye declared that so long as congress is against war President Roosevelt will avoid a showdown on legislation.

He said that the president could logically be expected to order use of the air force, especially that part operating from carriers, as well as the navy, in a shooting war.

There has been, he asserted, "a good deal of talk" of American flying officers and mechanics being sent to Great Britain to train the British in the use and maintenance of American planes.

While taxation is the major issue before congress, the house banking committee resumes hearings on price-control legislation this week.

The administration, it was said, seeks final disposition of the bill allowing the president to take over property in interest of national defense, while a $5,800,000,000 lend-lease appropriation bill is expected to be introduced this week.

The senate had no pressing business before it and may suspend operations for a month after the tax bill is sent to the White House.

REPORT RAIDER NEAR PANAMA

Naval Committee Considers Probe of Sub Attack on U. S. Destroyer.

Walsh told reporters. "It is the type of incident which might be used to involve this country in war. Congress and the country are entitled to know the facts and I shall ask the committee to conduct an open hearing."

Meanwhile, the navy was believed to be checking reports that a Nazi raider was in the general vicinity of the Galapagos Islands off the coast of Ecuador—some 1,000 miles west of the Pacific entrance to the Canal — and was preying on merchant shipping.

The location indicated, involving the possessions of a hemisphere nation, apparently would fall within the "defensive waters" area which Mr. Roosevelt mentioned in his speech when he warned Axis war craft that they entered those stretches of the sea at their own peril.

The navy treated the raider reports in a very gingerly manner and would give no hint what was being done about them. New York shipping circles for days have been hearing of a raider in that general vicinity, and these sources say that she has sunk one Dutch freighter and given chase to others.

The Pacific was a fertile hunting ground for German raiders in the World war, and to a somewhat lesser extent in the present conflict, one of the most celebrated of the raiders being Count Felix von Luckner, the bluff and picturesque "sea devil" who in the World war bagged 25 vessels before his capture.

In the current conflict, too, raiders have been active in the Pacific, but to a somewhat lesser extent. The von Luckner legend bobbed up in January, with reports that he was once more prowling the Pacific, sinking British ships, but these were later questioned. From time to time, too, there have been charges from Allied quarters that the Nazi raiders in the Pacific were secretly being supplied by Japanese sources.

BROADEN SEARCH FOR MURDERER

Northeastern Ohio Authorities Seek Killer of Tavern Owner.

ASHTABULA— (INS) —Police of northeastern Ohio today continued a search for Vincenzio Piazza, 60, wanted for five murders, the latest that of James Dama, 60, Youngstown cafe owner, who, police said, was fatally shot Friday night by Piazza.

Piazza, it was believed, was wounded by Dama after the latter was fatally hit by two bullets.

According to Ashtabula county Sheriff Roy Ritter, Dama, who ran a spaghetti house at nearby Geneva-on-the-Lake, had visited a farmhouse to buy tomatoes. As he was loading the vegetables in his automobile Piazza came up and rode off with him. The two were known to be friendly, police said.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1941

Some children behave very much like adults—they want everything they see.

Every time the clock ticks, $277 is added to the national debt—and it won't do a bit of good to stop the clock.

"The World of Tomorrow" being delayed in transit, a New York college is offering extension courses under the general head, "Understanding the World Today"—which seems to present sufficient difficulties.

Few Approve Appeasement

THERE is small encouragement in this country for Lindbergh and other appeasers, if the Gallup poll is interpreting public opinion accurately.

A recent question submitted to a cross-section of American opinion was this: "If peace could be obtained today on the basis of Germany holding the countries she has conquered so far, and Britain keeping the British Empire as it now stands, would you be in favor of such a peace?" And 71 per cent of the people said no. Only 21 per cent were in favor.

There were also 58 per cent opposed to the peace suggestion that Germany keep only captured Russian territory and give up France, Scandinavia and the other conquered countries. And 82 per cent were against Britain discussing proposals with Germany.

It remains to be shown how the American people would back such opinions and preferences by action, but there can be no question as to how they feel about the issues involved. In a real test, action usually follows thinking.

Freed's Rise Exemplifies Democracy

ONCE more in a world where liberty and freedom are on trial for their very life, comes an example of the opportunity offered by American democracy to every man with the ability, ambition and perseverance to succeed.

This example is the nomination by President Roosevelt of U. S. District Attorney Emerich B. Freed of Cleveland to the position of judge of the federal court of the Northern Ohio district. Senate confirmation is expected to be a matter of formality.

An immigrant from Hungary, he came to America as a boy with his family. He studied law, became a partner in former Senator Robert J. Bulkley's Cleveland law firm, served four years as assistant prosecuting attorney in Cuyahoga county, and eight years ago was appointed U. S. district attorney at Cleveland. At 43, he is one of the youngest men ever to be named to the federal bench.

District Attorney Freed is to become a judge when the federal courts are faced with a grave situation in which they become important guardians of the freedom and liberty which has meant so much to Freed's own career. His appointment is a fine lesson in democracy. It is fitting that he should have an important part in guarding its blessings.

Communist Says He's a Communist

WITH the exception of a few party leaders, such as Earl Browder, Communists in the United States have so consistently denied affiliation with the Communist party, that the recent admission made by Elmer Fehlhaber, of Cleveland, long active in CIO organization work, that he has "now joined the Communist party," is an interesting and refreshing bit of news.

Fehlhaber, some may recall, is a former Cleveland newspaper man, one-time president of the Cleveland Newspaper Guild, more recently the paid secretary of Labor's Non-Partisan League in Ohio, a vice president of the Ohio CIO Council and an organizer for Harry Bridges' CIO longshoremen's union.

Despite a pretense of recent "joining," Fehlhaber found opportunity in his announcement to eulogize Earl Browder, Communist candidate for the presidency, who is now serving a federal prison term for using faked passports.

Commenting editorially on Fehlhaber's declaration that he wished to be a front rank fighter for the defense of "my America" against Hitler, the Cleveland Press said:

> "But only a few months past, Mr. Fehlhaber was sneering at the defense program as a fraud, denouncing the draft law in a manner that came close to suggesting resistance, and so on. More practically, he was active in fomenting strikes in critical defense industries.
> "This, of course, was while the Communist party, like Stalin's Russia, was Hitler's ally. The circumstantial evidence was plain that Communist leaders in labor were attempting to sabotage American defense, anticipating that this country might be compelled not only to fight Hitler but also Russia at the same time, if the nonaggression pact changed to one of mutual aid in aggression.
> "They wanted to make America weak against the chance of that war, just as they had always previously striven to keep the American military establishment little and weak so that it would be a pushover for revolution when as and if the day should come.
> "God save America if its human defense depends on a party or an individual whose patriotism depends on the shifting alliances of a Russian tyranny dedicated to the destruction of free institutions in America and all other lands."

Now that Fehlhaber has come out in the open as an avowed Communist, may it be expected that some of his party associates will see fit to do likewise—Harry Bridges, the west coast alien agitator, for instance?

Advises Diversified Farming

WHATEVER "revolution" develops in this country in the near future may be on the farm. It will be if Claude Wickard, secretary of agriculture, has his way.

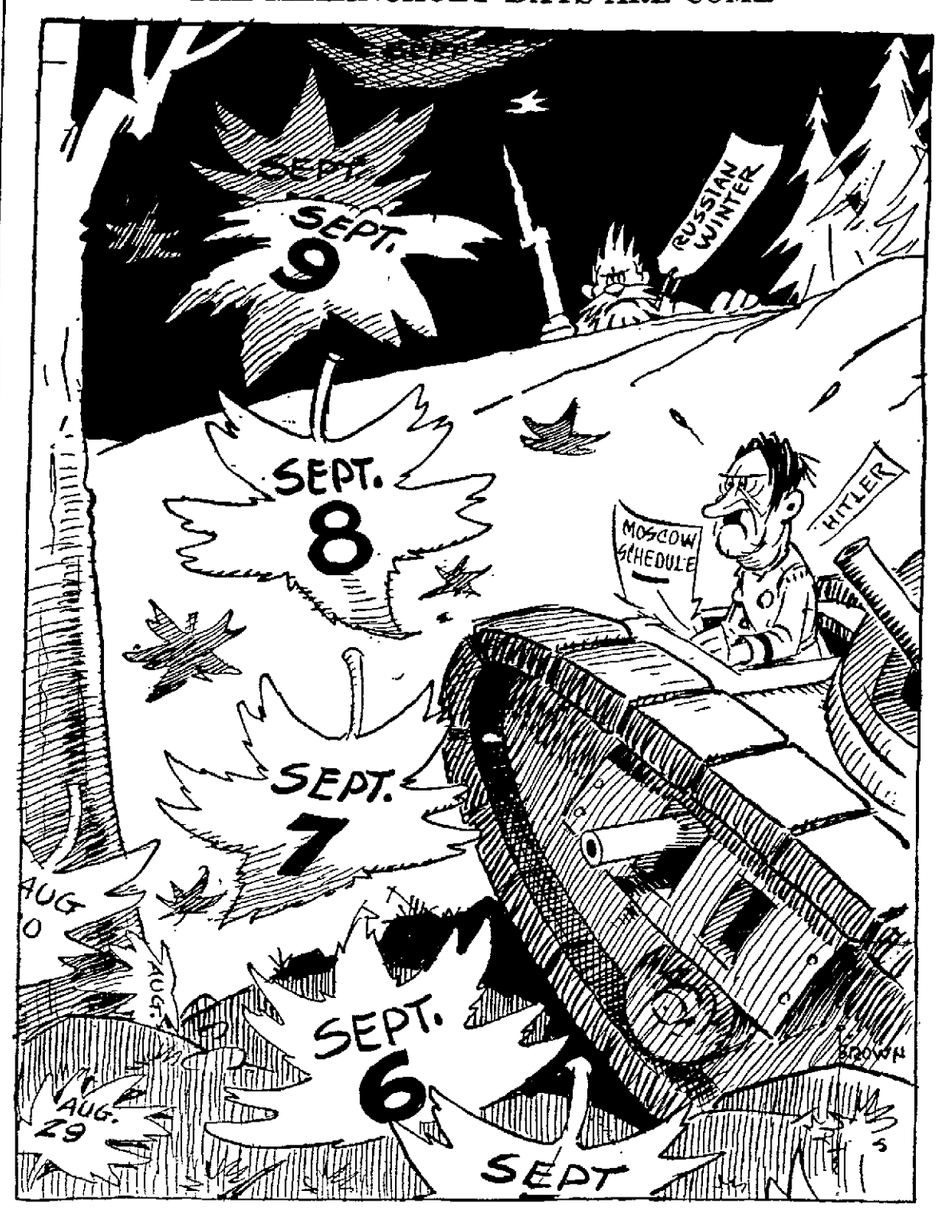
The secretary says the remedy for what ails agriculture today is more diversified farming. Others have said it, but apparently Mr. Wickard is determined, so far as he can, to act on this principle.

The ruinous addiction of southern states especially, to cotton and tobacco is an old story. If the people in such areas can be persuaded to plant vegetable gardens and adopt milk cows, it will amount almost to a revolution in living conditions and health. They could still grow tobacco and cotton, though somewhat less of both. The big thing would be that they could "live at home" instead of having to buy necessary foodstuffs or go without them.

Millions of northern and western farmers, too, are in about the same situation, specializing in certain easily salable crops and neglecting the home-grown foods that used to be considered essential to every farm and community. Now even the standard crops have become harder to market.

Apparently there must be less corn and wheat grown, as well as less cotton and tobacco. And there should be more eggs and meat. The present program, if it could be carried out, would go far toward making farm life much more independent.

THE MELANCHOLY DAYS ARE COME



Wary of Military Aid to Mexico

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — There are many misgivings in army, navy and even administration circles over the general policy of building up Mexico to be a military power.

The apprehension is based on the notion that Mexico has always been hard to handle. The present administration in Mexico is giving us the softest words we have had in many a decade, but there is no assurance, some of the critics fear, that this will continue—none even that a friendly government will be in charge of Mexico next year, or the year after.

Even those who decided this policy have some misgivings. They fear that Mexico will get cocky with her new trained personnel that she will decide to annex Guatemala or something of the sort.

The explanation for this policy of increasing Mexico's military power is that it is necessary to the plan of preparing the Western Hemisphere for resistance to Nazi aggression—particularly to head off any revolutionary movements aimed at spreading German domination of the New World.

HIGHER officials frankly admit that probably six or seven years from now we may be very sorry that we started Mexico on its militaristic career. Meanwhile, however, the risk of German fifth column activities is regarded as so great that trouble a few years hence becomes a comparatively minor consideration.

Mexico, next to the Central American republics and Columbia, is the most vital spot with respect to the Panama Canal. From both the Atlantic and Pacific sides bases set up by an enemy would be within easy bombing distance of the Canal. Furthermore, it is well known here that Nazi activity in Mexico has been at a high pitch for a long time.

Add to this the fact that of all the Latin American republics Mexico has been second only to the Argentine republic as a trouble-maker for the United States in various negotiations, notably at Pan-American conferences.

In the last few months Argentina has moved over to our side, so to speak. For one thing the present government of that country has been alarmed over the danger of losing power to a Nazi coup d'etat. For another this government has gone out of its way to remove the cause of Argentine dislike for the United States.

PRESENT help to the Mexican government is another spoke in the same wheel of preparing a solid front on this side of the Atlantic against Hitler.

But Mexico has something else of great importance in this picture. Through the southern part of that country runs a strategic railroad, the Tehauntepec. Before the days of the Panama Canal this was a tremendously important link in traffic from the Atlantic to the Pacific. If anything should happen to the canal it would be an important link again.

How New Drugs Are Developed.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ON my recent trip to South America, I was attracted by a fellow-passenger on the steamer, a Polish chemist, Professor Borzykowski, who had left his country because he was not in political agreement with the ideas of Hitler and had been invited by the Peruvian government to investigate certain chemical resources in that country. I saw him several times in Lima after he had started work.

I was, therefore, highly pleased to read that Professor Benno Borzykowski had reported to a special committee of experts on South American industrial development that he had found three new pain-controlling plants which had never been used before by anyone except Peruvian natives.

One of these is known as the "ayahuasca" plant. These various plants are said to be quite as powerful in controlling pain as opium and morphine. This, if true, is of great value because the sources of morphine are controlled by Japan in the Orient and by Germany in the Balkans. American supplies are gradually diminishing.

Obtaining New Drugs.

The research illustrates one of the methods of obtaining new drugs. Many of our most valuable drugs, such as foxglove and strophanthin, have been developed in just this way.

A physician finds that the people of a certain district of a foreign county are using a certain plant for medicinal purposes and he is induced to make a trial of it and finds that it actually has valuable properties which cannot be duplicated by any drug known to civilized medical practitioners.

Another way of developing drugs is by the use of synthetic chemistry. An example of this is the production of our hypnotic drugs. One of the first of these was developed by Liebig when he bubbled chlorine gas into alcohol and obtained a new liquid which he called "chloral."

For many years, chloral was about the best hypnotic drug. But it had dangerous potentialities. Chloral is the kick in the famous "knock-out drops" used to shanghai sailors. Besides being very powerful to the point of being dangerous, it was habit-forming.

Phenyl-hydrazine.

The development of modern hypnotics was the work of Emil Fischer, at the University of Wurzburg. Fischer was one of the greatest organic chemists who ever lived. He did a great deal of work on the chemistry of the sugars and in doing so used a chemical known as phenyl-hydrazine. In the course of his work, he inhaled a good deal of phenyl-hydrazine; after a good dose, he went to sleep.

Fischer with the suggestion of another physician, Josef von Mering, decided that a safer hypnotic could be made. Finally he produced eighteen, all of which produced some degree of hypnosis.

Some were too strong and produced a sleep from which the dogs to which it was given never woke, but the best of the lot produced twenty-four hours of placid sleep and this one they named "veronal" in memory of the Italian city of Verona which von Mering thought the most restful place in the world.

Others in the same group were luminal and phenobarbital. One of the tragedies of scientific history was that Emil Fischer, himself, in 1919, when he was finally convinced that the German army was not invincible, died with his last unhappy moment softened by the use of veronal.

Arizona's New Senator Startles Instigators of Attack on Movies

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — For 29 long years Henry Fountain Ashurst represented the state of Arizona in the senate, was the senate's most distinguished orator, most polished gentleman and the judiciary committee's most powerful member. When he was defeated the senate mourned, felt he never could be replaced.

The man who defeated him has sat in the senate for eight long months completely mute. Ashurst, always a gentleman, called him a fine senator and a fair opponent; but other senators said nothing. Even in the press gallery few knew who he was. No one could say definitely where he stood. He had voted for defense measures, but lined up with the isolationists against the draft extension bill.

Undoubtedly this was why Senator Wheeler made Ernest W. McFarland the fifth member of the isolationist-packed committee to investigate Hollywood. He was counted on to be a mere figurehead, non-troublesome window-dressing.

Little did Wheeler realize he was to become a Fifth Columnist.

Secret strategy of the isolationists was to launch a barrage of scorching attacks on the movies by Senators Nye and Bennett Clark, co-authors of the investigation, and other hand-picked sharpshooters. And with no critical questioning anticipated from the hand-picked committee, the isolationists were counting on a big publicity jamboree all their own way.

But the man who took Ashurst's place in the senate completely fooled them.

Out of a clear sky and to the goggle-eyed astonishment of the four isolationist probers, rookie Senator McFarland subjected Nye and Clark to a grilling that had them squirming in pained distress. When they had finished running the gauntlet of his slow-spoken questions he had drawn from them these embarrassing admissions:

That they themselves had seen hardly any of the films they denounced as "war propaganda."

That they had based their attacks on statements made to them by others, whom they refused to identify.

That they proposed no legislation, and that the probe, in effect, was a "witch hunt" to smear the movies for producing anti-Nazi pictures.

That Senator Nye disapproved Charlie Chaplin's "The Dictator" because it ridiculed a foreign country and ruler—Adolf Hitler.

Wendell Willkie.

SENATOR McFARLAND, a former county judge and expert on irrigation, was slow, frank and kindly. He seemed to enjoy himself immensely. So did Wendell Willkie, counsel for the movie industry, who was refused the right to interrogate Nye, Clark and their hand-picked witnesses.

This did not, however, keep the irrepressible Republican standard-bearer from blurting out his views despite the frowns of the committee.

When Nye accused the movies of being a monopoly, Willkie emitted a loud stage whisper, heard by everyone: "Monopoly, huh! You should have seen the way they squabbled among themselves for three weeks before they hired me."

Again when Chairman D. Worth Clark of Idaho announced that the committee would enlarge its investigation, Willkie remarked: "That's nice. They can keep this thing going to suit themselves indefinitely. But I guess I've got no complaint. I'll have a job until 1944."

Midnight Snack.

THE other day Senator Roger Peace of South Carolina, who holds the former seat of Justice Jimmie Byrnes, dropped in to see Byrnes at his home in Spartanburg. It was late in the evening and the two men raided the icebox. It was jammed with food.

"How do you happen to have so much food in the icebox today?" asked Peace.

"Well," grinned Byrnes, "after twenty years it feels so good to be able to walk down the street and not have anyone stop and ask for a job that I just went downtown this afternoon and did some shopping."

Note—Ex-Senator Byrnes was one of the president's most efficient congressional lieutenants and commanded great influence when it came to patronage.

Chairmanship Battle.

THE way and means committee, still groggy from the ordeal of drafting the $3,600,000,000 defense tax bill, will have another problem on its hands when the house reconvenes today. To some members, this will be tougher than the tax bill.

Democratic members of the committee must meet and choose the winner in the bitterest two-man battle for a chairmanship Capitol Hill has witnessed in many a moon.

The battle is for the chairmanship of the powerful house appropriation committee, vacated by the recent death of 83-year-old Representative Edward T. Taylor of Colorado. The rival claimants come from opposite wings of the Democratic party. They are:

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, handsome, white-haired Virginia conservative, a militant foe of New Deal domestic spending, but an equally militant advocate of spending for defense and aid to Britain.

Representative Clarence Cannon, Missouri New Dealer and the house's leading oracle on parliamentary law. Cannon has battled loyally down the line for the president's domestic program, but blows hot and cold on foreign policy.

Complicating headache of the tug-of-war is the fact that both aspirants have equal seniority—which is the chief factor in choosing a committee chairman. Both were elected in 1923 and named to the appropriations committee the same day, Dec. 12, 1929. However, Cannon's backers loudly contend he is entitled to the chairmanship because his name precedes Woodrum's on the committee roster.

Woodrum supporters reply that this is only "alphabetical precedence." They further maintain that if congressional precedent is followed, Woodrum, who comes from one of the 13 original states, has prior claim since in cases of equal seniority the candidates whose state was first admitted to the Union is usually appointed chairman. Missouri was admitted in 1821.

Note—The White House and Democratic leaders so far have kept out of the fight, but not the isolationists. They are secretly trying to line up support for Cannon because of his vote against the service extension bill.

Watching Trends

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

G. A. K., Lockport, N. Y.—Referring to the phrase "undue hardship" as a cause for letting men out of the army is about as indefinite as anything can be. It was not specifically defined in the law extending the selective service training period.

The war department's policy is very broad in this matter. Decision in all cases of alleged "undue hardship" is left up to the commanding officers. I can give you an illustration. If since a man's induction his father has died (leaving his mother without support); or his wife has died or divorced him, leaving a child to be cared for—these would be pretty clear-cut cases of "undue hardship."

There could conceivably be hundreds of similar cases. That, according to the war department, is why there has been no effort to define them. If a man thinks that he falls into this category, he should make application (in writing) to his commanding officer—setting forth reasons he thinks his case is one of "undue hardship." This application will go to field headquarters, or corps area headquarters, depending on the status of his unit and there be acted upon.

P. B., Williams, Ariz.—There has been nothing from official sources to indicate that our ships and airplanes in the Atlantic are armed for a shooting war. But it would be pretty blind to figure that they are not prepared for any such contingency. When the Panay was bombed in China it returned fire. Testimony before congress has indicated that our ships and planes, under the present emergency, are no less prepared.

K. L. T., Golden, Colo.—The Near East situation is far too complicated to try to explain in a paragraph, but war observers here are saying for certain that it probably will be the theater of war this winter. (Remember though that they have been wrong before. The collapse of Russia, according to their "authentic" estimates, is already two or three weeks overdue.)

T. M., Leonia, N. J.—The reorganization of the defense set-up (although it probably will not still the critical tongues of opponents) will have a much more far-reaching effect than appears on the surface. John D. Biggers (OPM production official) and Edward R. Stettinius jr., priorities chief, had been targets for opposition sniping for months. Their transfer to jobs which demand less over-all executive control will mean that many men they gathered around them soon will be returning to private enterprise. In other words, there will be a change in the priorities and production set-ups reaching well down the line. Whether it will be for better, worse or nothing at all remains to be seen.

K. R., Portsmouth, N. H.—Coast guard work still is being carried on by the Coast Guard. Under its transfer to the navy, the navy assumes the obligation of seeing that the tasks assigned to the coast guard are performed. In other words, the coast guard—like the U. S. Marines, for instance—is now a part of the navy, but with special duties.

O. M. T., Miami Beach, Fla.—The parachute troops (in training) are the fastest growing branch of the United States army. Two years ago, there were none. A year ago, there were about 60. Now there are more than 5,000 men trained or training. Trainees now may volunteer for this branch of the service, but one positive requirement is topnotch physical form.

Our Garden Toad

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LAST SPRING I saw an aged toad about my lettuce bed. Then I saw him about the peas and the young tomato plants. He was immense. I was curious about his weight and stuck my hand beneath his cool moist body and lifted him. He seemed to heft almost a pound. With a speculative curiosity I looked for signs of gray upon his horny temples.

For several weeks he stayed about these thick green hunting grounds and every evening, as I worked, I saw him. He liked angle worms, and when I hoed some large ones out, I would place them near him as one would a tempting feast for a favored guest. It was interesting to watch him gobble the writhing slimy morsels, and look to me for more. In fact our acquaintance was so close, that when I began to hoe, he would leisurely hop in sight, blink his sleepy eyes, and wait.

Then he disappeared. All during the summer I hunted about the tangled folds of plants, but he was gone. Chinch bugs grew numerous and ruined my sweetcorn; large long, black evil-smelling bugs bore down upon my tomato patch. I wished for my friend the toad and a dozen of his kind.

Yesterday after two bright dashing showers, I hoed some thrifty weeds that threatened to choke the prone tomato stalks. Just in front of where I tore out a heavy root, I saw the loose ground move half as large as a dinner plate. It almost startled me.

In a moment more, an earth-bound head appeared, with a floating isle of ground just back of it. Unaware of me, he moved toward my upright hoe. If it was my former garden friend, he had grown still more corpulent.

Fall and spring are much the same. Showers come and larks and peewees sing. Insects teem among the greening plants and earth worms move once more toward the surface. I threw a feast of worms before him, as I had done before, and in a very familiar manner, he ate them ravenously.

I often wondered how large a toad would get—how long his simple span of life might be. But I do know that every toad of such monstrous size might devour in a single night, a half pound of worms, insects eggs and mosquitoes. I would estimate his value to a growing family as more than $50.

Besides all this, he leads a most romantic life—a spring of song and courtship and fatherhood of a thousand tiny offspring. Yet, even now, he might get his seasons mixed and become a singing gallant again before the proper time.

PERIOD GOWNS WORN BY WEDDING PARTY

Miss Marjorie Swanger and Bridal Attendants Are Attired In Colonial Frocks for Wedding Held In Shelby on Sunday.

MISS MARJORIE BERNICE SWANGER of Shelby, former Mansfielder, wore a period gown reminiscent of the 1800 style, for her open church wedding Sunday afternoon. It was made of white slipper satin with a tight bodice, long waisted effect, to which was attached a very full skirt with long formal train. At 2:30 o'clock before the altar of the First Lutheran church in Shelby, the bride changed her name to Mrs. Gerald Thomas Davidson.

The wedding gown had a squared yoke of Alencon lace finished with a band of pearl beading which trimmed the high round neckline. Her veil of bridal illusion was worn virgin style and the finger-tip length was held in place by orange blossoms.

Three bridal attendants in dainty taffetas also of period style, preceded the bride down the aisle. Miss Ruby Bollman, of Mansfield, close friend and sorority sister, was maid of honor. Her frock was in Queen Anne blue and was made with long waisted shirred bodice and sweetheart neckline. Two ruffles of wide lace formed the trim for the skirt and sleeves. Dainty crinoline petticoats peeped from beneath the full skirt.

Miss Ruth Schuck and Miss Maxine Rimmer, both of Mansfield, and sorority sisters were bridesmaids and wore frocks identical to that of Miss Bollman's. Theirs were in Heather rose. Their small velvet hats of crownless style in California Claret were trimmed with tiny ostrich tips. The identical Colonial bouquets, carried by the attendants, were composed of roses, pompons and other small flowers and tied with dubonet ribbon.

Given In Marriage.

Miss Swanger, given in marriage by her father, Charles W. Swanger, carried a Colonial shower bouquet of white pompons, white gladioli and swansonia.

Nuptial vows were exchanged before an altar beautifully banked with palms, ferns and beauty baskets of white gladioli and pompons. Two seven branch candelabra on either side illuminated the scene. Dr. D. B. Young officiated at the ceremony in the presence of many friends and relatives.

Preceding the service appropriate music was played by Mrs. Frances Guthrie of Shelby. Her selections were Schubert's "Serenade," "Intermezzo" and Indian Love Call," and William Zackman of Shelby sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." During the service the number, "Faithful Forever" was softly played.

Mrs. Swanger, mother of the bride, was attired in a teal blue crepe ensemble trimmed in velvet. She wore a corsage of white gladioli. Mrs. Davidson's frock was black silk crepe and her accessories were in black and white. Her corsage was similar to Mrs. Swanger's.

Guests were ushered to their seats by Byron Caldwell of Mansfield, Horace Francis of Canton, Gene Witzkey of Mansfield, nephew of the bridegroom and Charles Swanger, of Shelby, brother of the bride. Robert Davidson of Mansfield served as his brother's best man.

A reception was held at the Swanger home following the wedding. Thirty of the family and a few close friends were in attendance. Refreshments were served buffet style from a table centered with a large tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Tall lighted tapers also decorated the table.

Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left for a trip. For traveling the bride wore a Hunter green suit with golden Sherry accessories and a long tailored sport coat.

Upon their return they will reside at 195 West Fourth street. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swanger, 32 Park avenue, Shelby, formerly resided in Mansfield at 119 Carpenter road. She has been employed at the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation here. She was graduated from Shelby high school and is a member of the Beta Kappa Tau sorority.

Mr. Davidson, 174 West Third street, son of Mrs. Emma Davidson, Averill avenue, attended school in Urichsville and is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Guests in attendance from out-of-town were from New London, Mansfield, Bucyrus, Urichsville, Columbus, Lorain, Ashland, Cleveland and Kentucky.

Second Wedding In Culp Family In Three Weeks

Of interest in Mansfield have been several weddings solemnized in Cleveland recently. Three weeks ago Miss Jessie Culp, daughter of Atty. and Mrs. Frank S. Culp, 386 Marion avenue, became the bride of Ernest R. Matthew of Cleveland in a formal service there. On Saturday, another daughter, June, exchanged vows with Neal Moore Farmer of Cleveland at the Christ chapel of the Church of the Covenant, Euclid avenue, Cleveland.

Simplicity marked the pretty ceremony solemnized by Rev. James McClintock, close friend of the family. The chancel was banked with palms and cybotium fern and on either side of the altar stood tall Cathedral scones with many lighted white tapers. Attached to the scones were large sprays of white asters and white gladioli.

Charles Allan Rebstock, master of music of the church, presented a program of nuptial music, including "Ich Liebe Dich" by Grieg, "Liebestraum," and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice." As the bride approached the altar on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, the strains of Gounod's "Ave Maria" were heard and continued softly throughout the ceremony.

The auburn hair of the bride blended most attractively with her tailored suit of nut brown silk faille. Her hat was an off-the-face bonnet in matching shade with a white dotted veil covering her face. She wore a shoulder corsage of green orchids and stephanotis and carried a chiffon handkerchief which had been carried by her two sisters at their weddings. The young couple was unattended.

Mrs. Culp, mother of the bride, wore a black dress with touches of heavy white lace at the throat and sleeves, and black accessories. Her small black hat had a veil held in place by a duster of feathers at the back, and she wore a purple orchid on her shoulder.

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception was held on the lawn of the church for the friends and relatives. Later the wedding dinner was served at Crosby's. The guests were seated at a large T-shaped table centered with traditional three-iered wedding cake, topped with a bell, and bowls of yellow tea roses, blue bachelor buttons and ageratum.

The bride and groom then left for a trip to the Ozark mountains and after Oct. 1 will be at home at 15800 Euclid avenue, East Cleveland.

Mrs. Farmer graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and has been employed as a secretary at the First Bancredit corporation in Cleveland. Mr. Farmer, son of Benjamin A. Farmer, of Carthage, Mo., was graduated from Paducah, Ky., high school and is employed at the National City bank in Cleveland.

Those present from Mansfield were Atty. and Mrs. Frank S. Culp, Miss Katherine Culp, Lionel Culp, Sterling Culp, Miss Jane Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Schreffler, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Theaker and daughter Sandra.

Education Group Plans Show for School Children

The nation's first of school season is the signal for organized university women to plunge with renewed zeal into their campaign to secure better educational opportunities for all children. Mrs. Clifford Faust, new educational chairman for the Mansfield Branch, A. A. U. W., and Miss Emma Waring, member of the Senior high school faculty, in charge of college guidance, are now at work with the high school activities committee organizing local efforts to further the scholarship policy for high school graduates.

This group will also sponsor the presentation of the Rufus Rose marionettes on Oct. 14 as an educational entertainment feature for school children. The local committee also arrange for the annual tea at the close of the school year honoring young women who are planning to enter college.

As new chairman of the national committee on education of the American Association of University Women, Dr. Laura Zirbes, of Ohio State university, will head educational campaign, assisted by Mrs. Harriet Ahlers Houdlette, Associate in Education at A. A. U. W. Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Zirbes sees strengthening the school as a home defense measure, a dynamic part of the A. A. U. W. "four faiths"—faith in what they are called upon to defend; faith in the available opportunities to meet the challenge of the times; faith in themselves to "do their bit;" faith in the final outcome of a nation-wide, hemisphere-wide effort to save democracy.

Mrs. Houdlette, education associate at A. A. U. W. Headquarters, says: "While stress is being put on material defense, the community can be reminded that the home and the school, and not the economics and internationalists, are forming the citizens who will actually build the world of tomorrow. And these two agencies, the home and the school, must understand each other to work together efficiently. Parents can follow school changes with open minds. The school and its teachers can strive for sympathy with the parents' desire for consideration of each child as an individual."

Sorority Plans For Steak Fry At Roadside Park

Mansfielders Attend Board Executive Meet

Several Mansfielders were in attendance Saturday and Sunday at the executive board meeting and Presidents' session of the Ohio Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs at the Neil House in Columbus. Miss Minnie Laudon of Mansfield, state chairman of the Florence Allen Scholarship Fund, spoke to the group on the national biennial convention held this summer at Los Angeles, Calif. Miss Laudon was one of five state delegates.

At this meeting the plans for the coming year were outlined explaining the federation's work on its theme "Strengthen Democracy for Defense." The word "defense" is used currently to refer to military activities; to goods or services directly or indirectly related to military activities; to civil defense, such as fire protection, water conservation; to work for relief, such as Red Cross work; or to efforts to preserve and strengthen the democratic way of life.

In this program the word is used in all the senses just mentioned but the last is the central theme for the national, state and local program.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Sept. 16.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

PROMOTION and progress are indicated by the astral vibrations intervening on the affairs of this day. There should be splendid opportunity with the encouragement and hearty support of elders, those in important positions and employers. But bids for this preferment must be based upon personal stability, diligence and strict adherence to the demands of duty and obligations. Large corporations, political or fraternal bodies should be cooperative, especially if handled with finesse rather than force or belligerency.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of advancement, security and solid growth, coming as climax to industry, diligence, dependability and a tested worthiness of character and purpose. Elders, influential persons and worthwhile friends cooperate in this, as well as major corporations, political or fraternal bodies. But some measure of restraint, good nature and finesse must be exercised to attain this fair fortune, not contention, rash of turbulent conduct.

A child born on this day should be endowed with many substantial talents and characteristics fitting it for solid growth and success in life, with elders and high personages showing preferences.

ANNOUNCE MARRIAGE

LUCAS—Mr. and Mrs. Hice Ramsey of Lucas, R. D. 1, announce the marriage of their daughter, Yvonne, to Kenneth Harlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Harlan of near Widowville. The wedding took place at Wheeling, W. Va., July 3.

GREEN PEPPER CASES

Green peppers make interesting cases for holding hot creamed foods or crisp salads. The peppers will stand up better if they are halved lengthwise. Discard seeds and pulp and simmer 5 minutes in water to cover for the hot foods. Serve as is but well washed and chilled for the salad containers. These filled pepper cases make serving easier for party fare.

DOUBLE-DECK FILLING

Sliced tomatoes, spread with ham relish make a refreshing filling for double decker or open faced sandwiches. Spread the bread slices with soft butter mixed with mayonnaise.

SEEDLESS JAM

To make a seedless berry jam, boil berries slowly with a little water until soft, then press them through a sieve to remove the seeds. Measure the pulp and add the required amount of sugar. Most jams use equal parts of sugar and pulp.

RUST REMOVER

Remove rust stains from iron porch furniture with steel wool and then go over with kerosene on a cloth. Never attempt to paint over rust stains; they will burst through the paint and look worse than before.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Tell this man also," my father went on, "that the two men he sends are each to have a tiny twisted piece of wire thrust through the top left buttonhole of his coat, but made as inconspicuous as possible. Describe Richard to them, his clothing, anything that will make them recognize him, but tell them if they do not see him first, that they are to stay at the station until he comes to them. Is Richard going to telephone you as soon as he gets in?"

"I imagine so," I said. "He said he would."

"Then," my father said with a smile, "it isn't a matter of imagination, but of trust. I never knew Richard to forget a promise. And when he telephones you, tell him to look for the men I have sent, and to arrange with them where he is to pick them up after he has started from Brixton house with Carolyn and Ronald.

"It is vitally important," he went on, "that neither Carolyn nor her parents have any inkling of the presence of these men as escorts. And I will tell Richard to send them away just before they reach the college. Their work will be done, and I do not wish anyone about the college to see so large an escort for Carolyn."

To Trail Carolyn.

My excited interest prompted an inane question which, the next second, I would have given much to recall.

"You do not intend then that those men shall trail Carolyn?"

"Please blame my excitement for my stupidity," I told him. "Of course those men couldn't be set on Carolyn's trail because she would recognize their faces."

"I knew you would see that in another instant," my father said comfortingly. "You may be very sure Carolyn will have no inkling that she is being watched, but she will make no move outside the college which is not known to men and women who are past masters in the art of trailing—and protecting—people. You need have no fear for Carolyn."

"I am afraid I am not worrying much about her," I said a bit shortly.

"No one can blame you for that," my father said, more reasonably than I felt deserved. "But aside from the fact that we can let no girl risk the dangers which Marion is facing, protecting and trailing Carolyn are very vital factors in the search for Marion."

He put his hand on my shoulder, then bent and kissed me.

"And now, my darling," he said. "I must leave you and go down to the Village, and see what luck the men are having in interrogating the gangster who choked you. If I know Gus, the man will expiate that choking in a manner most satisfactory to me."

The Armored Car.

"How are you going down to the village?" I asked.

"Why, in the car that brought me here," he answered.

"Father," I pleaded, "you know how I pride myself on not interfering with your work. But I want your promise now, that you will send for the armored car to take you down there. These men seem to be everywhere, and they balk at nothing."

"Something you seem to have ignored altogether tonight," he said caustically. Then his voice and face softened.

"But I will set you a good example," he said, and turning to the telephone he called the hideaway, and gave instructions — using a code for names and numbers—to have the armored car come directly to the Lansfield for him.

"Does that suit your requirements?" he asked when he had finished.

"Perfectly," I told him. "And now, there is one last thing upon which I wish your advice."

"What is it?" he countered.

"I promised to telephone Ronald, and tell him what we have found out," I said. "Just what, and how much do you wish me to tell him about the search for Marion?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

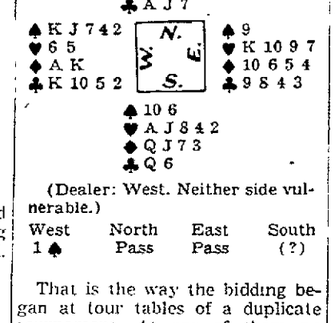
as told by

Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DOUBLE PREFERRED.

IF YOUR pair is one of those which does not make dangerously weak overcalls of an original bid, and which therefore allows your partner to pass the opener's call while holding a pretty good hand, it is up to you to protect your side in case the opener's partner passes. That pass having told about his weakness, it also tells you that your partner has some strength, and you therefore can reopen the bidding on about an average hand, sometimes with one less than average if it has favorable distribution. Usually a double is preferred.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	(?)

That is the way the bidding began at four tables of a duplicate tournament. At one of them an inexperienced player in the south position passed and West was obliged to play the hand at 1-Spade. He went down four tricks, scoring only with his two diamond honors and a ruff with the spade J. This gave North-South 200 points.

At another table South bid 2-Hearts, which was passed, and he made three, scoring 140.

Top score was where the correct thing was done, which also would have been correct in rubber bridge. That was a double by South, which North passed, bringing a four-trick set for a score of 700. At another table South doubled, North passed and East took out into 2-Clubs, which North doubled, that also being set four tricks for 700 points.

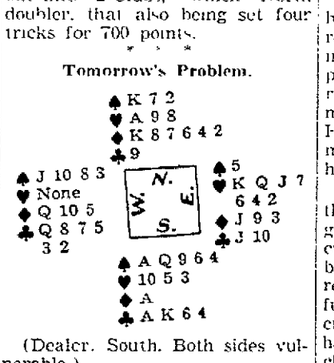
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If East had made a vulnerable overcall in hearts, West had doubled a club bid during the auction and West ultimately doubled 6-Spades, how should South play for his contract after a lead of the club 5?

High Value In Reading To Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Nothing else in this column, in my books or from the platform, has had so much of the spirit of the crusader as my efforts for years to get parents to read to their babies and young children. It's almost like a religion with me. So you can imagine my satisfaction in learning that so many parents who read this column are reading to their children who are too young to go to school, judging from the number of requests for selected list of books for that purpose.

Numerous public libraries are emulating the first world-famous Mother's Room of the Youngstown, O., Public Library, whose purpose is to stimulate and guide mothers in reading to their infants at home, by establishing similar departments. The supervisor of school libraries, of a state department of education, writes:

"Please send me your list of books to be read to children from the ages of two to six. It is surprising the interest we find among parents in reading for the pre-school years."

Demand Increasing.

Similar requests have been received from numerous local libraries. I foresee the day when practically every public library, whether it has a Mother's Room or not, will have to make ready to meet increasing demands by parents who wish to borrow books from which to read to their little children at home.

From the biographies and autobiographies of great men and women who lived a hundred or more years ago, you learn that they were read to in infancy by their parents. Gradually that custom almost wholly disappeared. But, like other good things abandoned for years, reading to babies and young children in the home would have come back eventually whether any one had advocated its return or not.

Keeps Up Crusade.

Nevertheless, I like to think I have had a part in speeding its return, for I have been advocating it since 1915. In 1925 I reported some of the results of reading to the Myers babies in my first book, "The Learner and His Attitude," and in books and magazine articles since then I have continued the crusade.

Readers of this column know that I try never to let them forget about the values involved—cultivating early, lasting love of books and reading, promoting reading readiness, ease and forcefulness of expression, stimulating creation and invention, building habits of concentration, fostering child-parent comradeship, making youngsters happy.

Please don't forget to enclose a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp, when you write me in care of this paper for a selected list of books to read to the baby and young child.

GEN. JOHNSON: Half Million Troops Begin War Games

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON — Apparently irked by commentators who have suggested that the morale of the army could be improved, our venerable secretary of war seems to want to lift their scalps or put them in jail beyond the reach of the writ of habeas corpus —or something.

Johnson

At a recent press conference, he quoted Lincoln's famous letter in the dark days of 1863:

"Must I shoot a simple-minded soldier boy who deserts while I must not touch a hair of a wily agitator who induces him to desert? . . . I think that, in such a case, to silence the agitator and save the boy is not only constitutional but withal a great mercy."

Mr. Stimson is said to have indicated that this was written to vindicate the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus.

If memory serves, and I am not where I can check the facts promptly, it was written in connection with the Vallandingham case. Vallandingham was a congressman and a states' rights Democrat from Ohio. He was doing a lot of intemperate oratory, demanding a negotiated peace with the south during the darkest period of the Civil war. He was arrested by the army in Ohio, tried by a military commission without a jury and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, which was commuted to exile. The principal row was over the drum-head method of his trial and not over suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, which is especially authorized by the Constitution during insurrection.

One factor in lagging army morale, the secretary is reported to have said, is critics who have been free to criticize "the whole purpose for which the army is being trained."

What is that purpose? Apparently Mr. Stimson doesn't know, for in almost the same breath he seems to have said that another difficulty in morale is that the troops have no concrete objective to train for and that it is like training a football team which has no games scheduled.

A more scrambled collection of self-contradictory statements could hardly be compressed into so few words. The morale is good, but the reasons why it isn't good are thus and so, he says.

This is not, with this writer, a case of "if the cap fits you put it on." I have said that morale improved and that it is not better for some of the reasons the secretary assigns.

But if the secretary doesn't know what we are raising, training and equipping this army for, I can tell him. It is to have the best trained, organized and equipped army of its size on earth for the defense of this country against any danger of attack anywhere.

There is no parallel between the situation Lincoln faced and Mr. Stimson's direct responsibility for the morale of the army now. Mr. Lincoln was at war and threatened with defeat. It was an insurrection—a war between brothers.

The country, even at the north, was divided against itself. The condition can hardly be more vividly expressed than in the old federal civil war song, "Just Before the Battle, Mother," which said, Tell the traitors all around you, that their cruel works we know, in every battle kill our soldiers, by the aid they give the foe."

That was a very different situation from our present period of blind fumbling to create a defense, when suppression of informed, intelligent, experienced comment on our shortcomings in that task could have no other effect than to cover up the very kind of incompetence about which the secretary himself complains.

35,000 MINERS ANSWER LEWIS STRIKE CALL

Refuse To Report For Work In Steel Corporation Mines; Ore Shipments Up.

(By International News Service)

PITTSBURGH — Quick action by the national mediation board was expected today as 35,000 miners in five states heeded a strike call by UMWA President John L. Lewis and refused to report for work in four steel corporation's "captive" mines.

The general walkout, set for the 7 a. m. shift today, was ordered to enforce the CIO's demand for a union shop proviso in all contracts. The strike affects only the "captive" mines operated by steel companies for their own consumption.

P. T. Fagan, president of District 5, UMWA, estimated 35,000 men were involved, with about 20,000 in western Pennsylvania and the remainder in mines in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Illinois.

The only "captive" mines in the Pittsburgh area not affected by the strike call were those of Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation. These mines already have the union shop proviso.

The steel companies have been operating the mines under a verbal agreement, pending settlement of the union shop dispute. Other provisions of the Appalachian pact were accepted.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Record-breaking railroad shipments of iron ore form a link in the transportation chain feeding the furnaces and mills which supply the steel needed for tanks, ships and munitions.

Citing yesterday's 125-car ore train as probably the largest ever moved, Pennsylvania railroad officials called attention today to a prospective record in the relay of iron ore from Whisky island dock in Cleveland to the steel mills of this area.

Harry L Nancarrow, general superintendent of Pennsylvania's lake division, estimated nearly 7,500,000 tons would be moved from Whisky island this season. Already 5,214,933 tons have been shipped, compared with the season record of about 5,800,000 tons in 1929.

CONTINUE STRIKE

HAZLETON, Pa.—(AP)—For the third time more than 10,000 Pennsylvania hard coal miners disregarded orders from their union leaders today and continued a work stoppage that has closed 14 collieries.

An attempt to reopen two of the operations this morning collapsed after a motorcade of insurgent members of the CIO United Mine Workers of America roared up to the mines and gathered about the entrances.

At neither place was there sufficient workers on hand to resume operations. A third mine, the Bazleton shaft colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, one of the largest in the Hazleton district, also was scheduled to reopen but remained closed.

CIVIL WAR VETS CONVENE TODAY

100 'Boys In Blue' Expected To Register For 75th Meet In Columbus.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — More than 100 bent and aged veterans of the Civil war of '61 were expected to register today for the four-day Diamond Jubilee encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Feeble old men—some wrinkled and weak, others cheerful and chummy—swarmed into Columbus to help make the 75th national convention the "gayest yet."

Half of the expected "boys in blue" arrived yesterday for preliminary sessions. Many of them hobbled about on canes and eagerly awaited the traditional memorial services, band concerts, business meetings and the parade, Wednesday which highlights the encampment.

The men, whose ages averaged 95 plus, were bitter in their denunciation of modern military warfare and described it as "inhuman."

Theodore Wells, 95, of Cambridge, department commander for Ohio, gave a typical statement on the current war. He said:

"This isn't war, it's destruction. Women and children are killed unmercifully. When we fought, we did it on the battle lines and not against defenseless persons."

He said "We already are in the war, which I think will end in a year with Hitler as the loser."

Francis Monroe Brown, 99-year-old Kansas City, Kans., negro, attacked the "inhuman and unjust" warfare and predicted that "we will be in shortly but no country can beat America—even if I have to help out myself. And I'd go tomorrow if they'd accept me."

CANTON MAN ATTEMPTS TO ROW ACROSS LAKE ERIE IN KAYAK

(By Associated Press)

CANTON—Whether a 23-year-old welder attempting to cross Lake Erie in a 12-foot homemade kayak succeeded in reaching the Canadian shore was still in doubt today, hours after the conclusion of the schedule he had set.

Arthur Szabo wanted to become the first man to paddle across the lake. He and Robert Craig, 22, a fellow employe of a Canton plant, set out from Gordon park, Cleveland, on Sunday, Aug. 31 but were forced to turn back because of high waves.

Saturday night Craig said he took Szabo to the same starting point, and the young adventurer set out alone, without food and with only a compass and the stars to guide him, to reach Blenheim, Ont., about 50 miles across the lake. He expected to arrive in 25 to 30 hours.

His craft was an aluminum-ribbed canvas boat fashioned in the manner of the Eskimo kayaks of the far north — supposedly unsinkable, but capable of being tipped over.

"We worked about two weeks building the boat before we gave it its first tryout on Turkeyfoot lake," said Craig. "It worked fine."

The first start was unsuccessful, and Saturday Szabo "came for me with the boat all ready but minus the pontoons" which had been attached to each side on the first try, said Craig. "I drove him up and saw him off."

Craig said he waited at the starting point all of Saturday night, just in case Szabo should turn back, then returned to Canton.

"On the first trip the kayak was rigged as a two-passenger affair, but when Szabo came for me Saturday the front cockpit was sewed over and he apparently had decided to make the trip alone," Craig related, and added that he would have liked to go along.

Szabo estimated that if he missed the point at Blenheim he would have to travel an extra 10 or 15 miles.

INMATE KILLED

O. S. R. Fugitive Shot While Attempting Hold-up.

Fred G. Reed, 25, an Ohio State reformatory fugitive, was shot and killed Saturday night while attempting to hold up a Columbus grocery.

Police said Groceryman Clayton L. Lloyd shot Reed while he and a companion, Ralph Bush of Columbus, attempted to hold up Lloyd's store.

Reed entered the reformatory here Dec. 9, 1935, from Franklin county where he was sentenced to 10 to 25 years on robbery charges.

Arthur Glattke, superintendent, said the prisoner escaped June 27, 1938, while working as a trusty outside the prison walls. He was later sentenced to the West Virginia State penitentiary at Moundsville but escaped from there also.

Surviving are her husband, Bert, and one son, Earl, at home.

The body was taken to the Elliott funeral home in Millersburg and will be returned to her home this evening.

Laff-a-Day

Up and Down THE STREET

A 19-year-old youth who was in the county jail today had deputy sheriffs "all mixed up." The youth was arrested yesterday after his car hit another and crashed into a cemetery near Crestline, knocking over a tombstone. The deputies found, however, that he had a Missouri driver's license, the car he was operating had Toledo, O. license plates, and the youth said he lived in Pittsburgh. The officers took the driver to jail while they try to untangle the mystery.

If Principal Harry J. Dotson of John Simpson Junior high school and John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board of election, went about their duties with aching muscles today, there's a good reason for it. Both turned farm hands Saturday and helped with the threshing at the George Robinson farm near Pavonia. Dotson helped build the straw stack and Eisaman carried the bags of wheat away from the thresher. Robinson said they were "good hands."

A large German shepherd dog afforded late moviegoers an added bit of entertainment last night when, after crossing Mulberry street at the corner on Park avenue west on the green light, he trotted up to the street fountain and took a long satisfying drink. Standing on his hind legs, with his paws around the bubbler, he looked the picture of canine bliss, evoking such comments as, "Isn't that cute?" from bystanders.

If your grandmother was one of the belles of the ball back in the Eighties, you should be able to get a free ticket to the 1941 Mansfield Police Ball. Patrolman Clare Kyler said today that he had a ticket for the 1888 Police Ball and that the Mansfield Police Recreation association will give a new ticket in exchange for any as old or older than the one Kyler has.

FUNERAL SET

Lexington Drowning Victim To Be Buried Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mabel Dillon, 45, of nearby Lexington, whose body was found at the bottom of a cistern near her home early yesterday, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. from the home with Rev. Jack Mellick, Lexington, officiating. Burial will be in Lexington cemetery.

Dr. L. B. McCullough, Richland county coroner, said today that Mrs. Dillon had taken her own life by drowning.

Mrs. Dillon's body was found shortly before 1 a. m. yesterday in the cistern behind Hotel Minnear in Lexington which her family has operated for many years.

Richland county deputies said that she had been in poor health for some time and that the disappearance of her son, Sheldon, 19, two weeks ago, had made her despondent.

Born in Johnsville on June 24, 1896, Mrs. Dillon lived in Lexington the greater part of her life. Survivors besides her husband, Farnk Dillon, include her son, Sheldon; a daughter, Beverly, a sister, Miss Beulah Minnear, all of Lexington; and two brothers, Paul Minnear of Lexington and Wayman Minnear, Mansfield.

SECOND, THIRD ARMIES MARCH THROUGH RAIN

Maneuvers Will Test Defense Against Tanks and Other Mechanized Attack.

(By Associated Press)

ALEXANDRIA, La. — Half a million troops of the Second and Third armies, trained to razor edge in preliminary maneuvers, advanced on each other through rain and mist today to test themselves and the nation's newest battle weapons in climatic two-week war games.

The Third army of 330,000 men under Lieut.-General Walter Kreuger, which theoretically had established beach heads on the Gulf of Mexico coast, advanced northeastward toward the Second army of 150,000, commanded by Lieut.-General Ben Lear.

The outnumbered Second army has greater mobility and a powerful armored corps, two divisions with fearful shock power in 700 tanks, as its principal threats.

The Third army, driving up from the south, must find this armored striking force, and 400 planes of a new air task force were alert to spring into overcast skies.

Once the movements of the armored divisions were indicated, the Third army had three speedy "tank killer" groups, each with 2,000 men and truck-drawn guns, to throw against them in the first test of recently developed defense against mechanized attack.

PLEASED WITH ARMY

LAKE CHARLES, La.— (AP) — Military and state authorities, after a concentrated drive on vice, gambling and uncleanliness in the area where half a million troops today began their huge war maneuvers, expressed themselves as pleased with the soldiers' health and conduct.

Sharp army criticism, however, was directed at the number of traffic accidents in the western section of Louisiana where for more than a month the Third army's 330,000 troops have been concentrated before marching against the Second army's 150,000 men.

State Police Captain B. O. Yeldell, charged with cleaning up that western area where at night troops by the thousands jam streets, restaurants and beer parlors, declared:

"We've broken up gambling in the entire area except for a few cheaters who won't stay long. We've driven prostitutes out so thoroughly that now the few trying to sneak in are forced to operate from taxicabs. We'll run them out, too, when we find them."

LISTS OVERAGE OFFICERS

OAKDALE, La.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler today listed 119 officers of the 37th (Ohio) Division as overage in their present grades and subject to relief from active duty with the field forces of the army.

Two veterans of the Spanish-American war of 1898 and many World war veterans are affected by the war department policy designed to insure that "all officers serving with the troop units are within the ages which permit efficient continuous performance of field duty under the arduous conditions of modern combat."

The list will be sent to the adjutant general of the army in Washington for action and General Beightler said there was no indication when relief from duty or transfer of officers might be accomplished.

Honor Pupil Says He Took Part In Gang Robberies

HAMILTON—(U P)—Ross Asher, 19-year-old Hamilton high school honor student, was in jail today facing robbery charges.

Police said Asher, who was brought here from Wichita Falls, Tex., where he was arrested Sept. 6 shortly after he enlisted in the army, had admitted that he participated in a number of cafe robberies this summer with a band of hooded youths.

Elmer Johnson, 21, and Andrew Gentry, 19, were arrested last week and admitted membership in the bandit gang, police said.

Joseph Arvin, 19, another alleged member of the gang was shot to death here early this summer in a scuffle at the YMCA.

BOXER INJURED

Lew Jenkins Hurt When Motorcycle Hits Traffic Stanchion.

LITTLE FERRY, N. J.—(INS)—Lightweight champion Lew Jenkins whose penchant for whizzing around on a motorcycle is a frequent source of worry to promoters and his handlers, wound up in a hospital today with painful injuries after a cycle crash.

The boxer was taken to Hackensack hospital with a possible fracture of the shoulder and multiple abrasions after crashing into a traffic stanchion in Little Ferry.

The Moose are on the loose this week, as you may have surmised after seeing all the banners waving on downtown Mansfield streets.

And you can change the old saying of "Busy as a mouse," to "Busy as a Moose," for the Mansfield lodgemen. In addition to entertaining the state convention, they have important business on their own calendar.

Tonight the 12-team Mansfield Moose bowling league gets under way at the Colony alleys at 6:30 p. m.

Are 12 teams big league? Well, Moose keglers are going big league, with opening night ceremonies and all.

Lester Raby, governor of Mansfield Moose, will throw out the first ball. I mean he'll roll it. The boys neglected to tell me whether there'd be a band, and a flag raising, but there'll be plenty of the old whoop-la when the pins begin to fall.

* * *

Oh, tell me what's the matter.
Why the clatter, and the din?
Why, that is just the splatter
Of the ball against the pins.

Mansfield Provident Loan girls, twice state softball champions of Ohio, got back home Saturday night from performing in the fastest softball company in the world.

And they want the fans at home to know that they won a game in that Detroit national tourney show, a 10 to 1 shellacking over Indianapolis.

And in that victory they gained plenty of consolation for their later elimination by Chicago 5-0.

* * *

So doff the lid, boys, when the Provident girls pass by. They deserve all the credit you can give 'em.

Me? I ain't got no hat. But if I had a hat, I'd be the first to doff it.

Good news! Old Man Mose's nerves are settled. Mose McCullough, who had to give up his job as groundkeeper and bus driver for the Mansfield Braves at the tag end of the season because of a nervous breakdown, writes me from Ontario, Canada, that he finds the catching of 30-inch pike very soothing on the nerves.

The Cleveland Indians have dipped into local baseball talent and picked up a catcher, Don Dawson, the Plymouth receiver.

Dawson was signed last week by two scouts and President Alva Bradley himself, and is to report to the Indians when the Tribe returns home from its eastern trip.

GRAND CIRCUIT SEASON OPENS AT DELAWARE

DELAWARE—(U.P.)—Grand Circuit racing, featuring some of the nation's top trotters and pacers, will open tomorrow at the Delaware county fair and continue four days.

Approximately $27,000 in purses will be awarded during the four-day program on the speedy Delaware oval where eight world's records were broken during the harness meeting a year ago.

Cards Cut Brooklyn Advantage

Gain Half Game By Snaring Double-Header.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Feverish for their first pennant since 1920, Brooklyn's Dodgers sought today to win their second straight in a three-game series with Cincinnati and boost their league lead to two games.

With other National Leaguers idle, a Dodger victory would get back a half game second-place St. Louis gained by winning two yesterday when the Brooks broke a tie in the ninth to take a single game from the Reds 7 to 5.

A Redleg loss would tie the champions with third-place Pittsburgh and mathematically eliminate Cincinnati from this year's race. Big Paul Derringer, after his dozenth victory and second over the Dodgers who've whipped him four times, was Manager Bill McKechnie's probable to forestall this unpleasantness, with Elmer Riddle, the loop's leading moundsman, a second choice.

Luke Hamlin was Brooklyn's nomination to swell 1942 Dodger victories over the Reds to 14.

Yesterday the Dodgers before a roaring crowd of nearly 24,000 twice came from behind to send Bucky Walters to his 14th defeat against 17 triumphs.

Hugh Casey got his fourth conquest of the Reds, taking over for Kirby Higbe and retiring the Reds in order in the last two rounds.

The Dodgers in those two frames tied the score on Ducky Medwick's eighth-inning double and a pair of putouts, and went on to win in the ninth on Billy Herman's homer. Lou Riggs' double, Medwick's single and Peewee Reese's double added another for good measure.

The St. Louis gang overcame the Giants twice by scores of 1 to 0 and 6 to 5, the second tussle going 10 innings. Carl Hubbell, still a master craftsman, held them to three hits in the opener.

They went into the ninth frame of the second game trailing by two runs, but knocked Cliff Melton from the hill to tie it up and then won out in the 10th on an error by Dick Bartell with the sacks filled.

* * *

The double win enabled the Cards to reduce Brooklyn's lead to a game and a half. The margin is certain to be changed one way or the other today, as the Cards take a rest while the Dodgers have another shot at the Reds.

* * *

Pittsburgh won its first game with the Phils 2 to 1 and appeared to have the nightcap sewed up until the Phils suddenly blasted loose for five runs in the ninth inning to win it 6 to 3.

The Chicago Cubs split a pair with the Boston Braves. The Braves blasted 15 hits to take the first 6 to 3, but absorbed a 10-3 licking in the second.

Young Sid Hudson turned in the day's feature piece in the American league, yielding only four hits in pitching Washington to a 2-0 shutout over Detroit.

The Boston Red Sox virtually clinched second place by taking a pair from Chicago, 9-2 and 5-2. St. Louis shoved the Philadelphia Athletics into the cellar by sweeping a double-header 7-2 and 5-1.

* * *

The Cleveland Indians sent Al Smith against the Yankees and Vernon Gomez today after dividing a Sunday doubleheader with the 1941 American League champs.

Bob Feller suffered his 12th defeat instead of gaining his 24th win in the opener. Red Ruffing allowed Jeff Heath to get a homer and a single, but Campbell's double was the only other hit the Indians made in the whole game, which ended 6 to 3.

Th Indians won the second contest 5 to 2 by scoring all their runs in the eighth inning, after which the game was called on account of darkness. Joe Krakauskas, who went seven innings, was the winner and Marv Breuer was the loser.

Semi-Pro Football Planned At Galion

GALION — Semi-pro football will come to Galion this year when a team sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce takes the field coached by Robert Corry and Howard Nussbaum.

Corry is the former Galion high school mentor while Nussbaum at one time coached the Bucyrus high gridders.

Profits from the games will be used to purchase more flood lights and a public address system for the sports field here.

The team will meet its first opponent sometime in October, according to plans now being formulated.

Squirrel Season Opens

Annual Barrage Gets Under Way In Southern Ohio.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A thunder of guns in woodlands of southern Ohio early today brought consternation to the squirrel population and signalled opening of a season which attracts 500,000 or more sportsmen to the outdoors.

Squirrel hunting, while extremely popular, provides only a warmup for the big barrage which starts in November against the rabbits and pheasants.

* * *

Because there are more squirrels in the southern counties, the Conservation commission permitted hunters in that area to begin shooting a week earlier than their brethren in the northern section.

* * *

The season runs from Sept. 15 to 30 in that half of the state bounded by, but including, Darke, Shelby, Logan, Union, Marion, Morrow, Knox, Holmes, Tuscarawas, Carroll and Jefferson counties.

* * *

In counties north of that area the squirrel may be hunted Sept. 22 to 30.

* * *

The bag limit is four squirrels a day, and eight may be had in possession after the opening day.

Crown New Gals' Pitching Champ

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Nina Korgan, 24-year-old girl from Tulsa, Okla., today was the self-crowned queen of America's softball pitchers.

Nina pitched the Higgins Midgets of Tulsa to the world's championship last night with a 8-0 victory over the Cleveland, O., Erin Brews. She yielded three hits and fanned 11 batters. In previous tournament games she fanned 64 and hurled one no-hit contest.

Her performance outshadowed the men's title game in which the Bendix Brakes of South Bend, Ind., took the championship by crushing the Romancos of Roanoke Rapids, S. C., 9 to 0.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Monday matinee: Most surprising news of the weekend was that licking Whirlaway took up at Narragansett, and it's really got the horse players wondering. . . . Isn't it about time for the Dodgers to begin asking if the Giants still are in the league? . . . They didn't help Brooklyn a bit by losing that doubleheader to the Cards yesterday. . . . Betty Hicks Newell, the new women's golf champion, says she'll listen to pro offers because "my husband and I need a stake to start out married life." . . . From tournament winner to bread winner, huh?

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Don Pierce, Topeka (Kans.) State Journal: "Only choice grid timber we ever heard of escaping the Cornhusker clutches at Lincoln are Tom Brock, sophomore Notre Dame center, and Bob Robertson, U. S. C. half, both of whom are touted to be two of the top football twinklers of the nation this year. When they roll, the chagrin out in the big double-decker in Lincoln should be as deep as last year's Cornhusker line replacements."

Latest sign of the coming chilly season is that a new pro basketball league, to take in eight major cities, is being formed, with New York's original Celtics as the starter.

Birds Erase Blues' Bid

Win Series and Prepare For Other Playoff Winner.

(By Associated Press)

Manager Tom Sheehan has nominated the veteran Harry Kelley as tonight's pitcher against the Louisville Colonels, who need only one more victory to eliminate the Minneapolis club from the American Association postseason battle.

Bill LeFebvre is Manager Bill Burwell's choice to oppose Kelley. Wet grounds at Minneapolis kept the two teams idle Saturday and Sunday.

Meanwhile, Columbus' flag-winning Red Birds erased Kansas City from the playoff picture with a 7 to 3 victory yesterday. The Blues split the first two games with the Flock, lost the next two, bounced back to win Saturday, but fell by the wayside in the sixth game.

Complete plans for the final series between Columbus and the Minneapolis-Louisville winner will be announced at conclusion of the Miller-Colonel playoffs.

'Pore Little Boys' To Do Or Die For Butler High

By BUD SPRUNGER
(News-Journal Sports Writer)

Butler high school faces this year's gridiron wars with a light team—very light. Merrill Hall, who will coach the team for the first time this year, figures that his outfit averages 126 pounds as compared with 160 pounds last year.

* * *

Hall refuses to estimate how the squad will fare against its six rivals, but he was "figuring each game as it came up and hoping to win all of them."

* * *

"We're going to work things from single wing, 'T,' and punt formations," he contained, "but the main purpose with a squad this size is, of course, speed."

What's more, not only is the team light but only three lettermen are returning. Co-captains Frank Burkepile and Percy Crunkinton and Elwin Harris who make up the team's veterans, are joined by five others who have seen some service.

* * *

Hall said that quite a few of his remaining players have never played organized football before.

* * *

"We've been spending a good part of our time," he explained, "teaching the boys the fundamentals of the game such as blocking and tackling. It's just going to take us time to get started."

* * *

Butler's schedule follows:
Sept. 19, Centerburg, at home.
Sept. 26, Johnny Appleseed Junior high vs. Butler reserves, at home.
Oct. 3, Mt. Vernon reserves, at home.
Oct. 10, Fredericktown, at home.
Oct. 25, at Bellville.
Oct. 31, Danville, at home.

Liberties Win Rubber Game

Score Decisive 6 To 0 Victory Over Ontario.

The Liberty Parks can claim the independent baseball championship of Richland county today, with a decisive victory over Ontario in the third and rubber tilt of their series on the park diamond.

Back of Red Bender's one-hit hurling, the Liberties trounced Ontario 6 to 2 yesterday afternoon, and there was never any doubt of the outcome after the Liberties got away to a two-run lead in the second stanza.

Bob Boyd started the scoring with a long triple over the left-fielder's head, coming home a moment later on an infield out. Midway in the pastimeing, Boyd drove home two runs with a single, and late in the game he beat out a perfect bunt to make it three hits in four times up for batting honors.

Two walks and an error gave Ontario their two unearned runs in the ninth inning.

Joe Atton, Liberty catcher, was forced to leave the game in the seventh inning with a split finger resulting from a foul tip.

New Pro Coaches See Teams Licked

CHICAGO — (AP) — Earle (Greasy) Neale and Big Bill Edwards, two highly successful college coaches, still were a bit dazed today by their rude reception in the National football league.

* * *

Each made his competitive bow over the week-end with almost identical results—crushing defeat by two of the most improved and powerful elevens in the 10-team circuit.

* * *

Neale, former backfield coach at Yale, saw the stream-lined New York Giants smear the first edition of his Philadelphia Eagles, 24 to 0, before 38,147 at Philadelphia Saturday night. Curly Lambeau's Green Bay Packers were no more hospitable to Edwards, rolling over his Detroit Lions, 23 to 0, yesterday afternoon. Edwards was signed by the Lions after a brilliant regime at Western Reserve.

CHAPTER I

(Author's note: This is a work of fiction, and while the setting in general will be recognized by many people, no effort has been made to portray actual places, persons or events.)

Lillian fingered the cards without shuffling, because she knew Jason would appear presently and because there was no earthly hurry anyway. Martin Deale sprawled back in the great green rocker as he had done almost every day since he was a little boy, and the other two were equally at ease. The supper had been good. They all knew, without her telling them, that dessert would be served out here on the broad veranda.

In a moment they heard Jason's peculiar gait. For at least half a century the old negro had been crippled—"slue-footed" in one leg—so that in walking he rocked or swayed something like a ship at sea. But he got around with infinite dignity. He had removed the blue jumper he wore in the garden all afternoon and put on the spotless white thing that made him the Mayfield house man. They heard his progress out of the kitchen, through the dining room, up and across the incredibly long hall, through the carpeted library and into their presence through the high double doors.

"Miss Millie 'struct me to say the young gentlemens can have double helpin's, Miss Lillian, ma'am."

Lillian smiled. "Just bring second servings automatically, Jason. You know how it is."

The three young men offered mock protests, and from a corner Lillian's sister laughed.

"Hush, Baby Doll, don't be rude," Lillian chided, in pretense also. "And please go away somewhere. Neither Thad nor Martin nor M. J. has come to see you."

That evoked a flood of gallantry. Thad Monroe spoke loudest.

"Of course we did!" he protested. "Baby Doll is delightful company. Anyway, Lil, this is another spring, you know. Whenever will she be old enough to drop that kiddish name?"

"All right, call her Dorothy then. But run her away."

"I won't go!"

The easy banter kept up until Jason had set the bowls down. Each held almost a pint of lemon-mint sherbet which the five young people ate with unashamed gusto.

Here on this porch was happiness, reigning as it had reigned here since long before their day. The place was in effect the Mayfield living room for about eight months of the year, because Jason put up the windows that glassed it in and kept it cozy on all but the coldest winter weeks, and in summer there were screens. The grand piano there dated back to Miss Millie's own girlhood, and it was kept in careful tune. Rugs could be whisked aside on the slightest provocation, as when piano, radio or phonograph lured youth to dance.

Just outside, twilight seemed to linger on the crepe myrtle blossoms. They made giant tree bouquets, and the ground underneath was covered with a pink snow because of them. The mock oranges blossomed too, sending their incomparable fragrance all through the mansion and even down the wide lawn to assail passersby. Out front, early-season insects made their reedy orchestrations in the oaks and the elms and the two big holly trees—Dorothy (alias Baby Doll) had already brought in empty locust shells, as she had done each year since she was a toddler.

Of these myriad lovely details, only Martin Deale seemed conscious this evening. The others were too accustomed to living here. Martin was more of a dreamer, an artist at heart as well as by profession.

"You Mayfield girls are like magnets," Thad declared suddenly. "I have yet to drop in when there aren't a gang of males ahead of me."

"Sweet of you to join them," Lillian said.

"I guess so. I like it here. You aren't too—well, too dog-gone southern. You know what I mean."

"How's that?" Martin spoke up, almost in challenge.

"Well, they don't over-do the Scarlett O'Hara act, Lillian and Baby D—and Dorothy, they're genuine."

"This isn't quite the 'old South'," Lillian reminded him. "This is East Texas, you know. But the mark is bound to be on us some. Grandpappy and gramma both came to Rangeville from Tennessee and pioneered here."

"That makes it," Thad nodded. "I like that much in you."

The telephone rang. There was an extension on the porch and Lillian reached for the handpiece. She spoke brightly.

"Oh of course, Dr. Watkins! Send him right out! I—we'll all be so glad to meet him...He is? ...That's just grand! Oh surely we've heard about him....So you think he really is so handsome, then!" Lillian laughed gaily and Dorothy's interest perked up. Martin turned a quizzical eye at the older girl. "I'll powder my nose and put on my best manners, Dr. Watkins—you're an old dear!"

She hung up and looked at the others wide eyed a moment.

"Something?" Thad asked.

"Oh, yes! Dallas Tower's coming. Dr. Tower."

"Oh," Thad's voice was downscale. But he and all the others showed interest, waiting.

Lillian didn't feed their curiosity. She bit her lower lip, looked off afar as if meditating. Her eyes sparkled. Suddenly she stood up and the others saw again how exquisitely pretty Lillian Mayfield was. She wore this evening a crisp dotted Swiss, all white. Martin Deale the artist tried to analyze it, in his mind. There were tiny snow flecks woven in the fabric, and a red ribbon entwined somehow around the neck and again at the belt line, and she had on stockings that were well nigh invisible—but his eyes kept jumping back to her face and hair. Lillian's face was, well, classic, Martin felt. He had done her portrait five times. He had often longed to touch her cheeks, just to touch them. They were rounded; none of this hollow artificial, sophisticated business. They had the same bloom now at 22 that they had shown at 16. They had the same dominant loveliness that Baby Doll's—no, Dorothy's—had now that Dorothy was 17, but on Lillian's lips was a slower, sweeter smile that the more ebullient Dorothy probably would never match.

Martin was still looking at her when she ran, without apologies, into the house. They heard her go upstairs.

"Doc Tower, eh?" Thad Moore mused, aloud. "Anybody met him?"

"I just heard he was coming, is all. Due here today." M. J. put in that much.

"He's not wasting any time."

"Old Doc Watkins is taking him under his wing."

"Well, maybe he's okay at that. Hunh?"

Thad sighed elaborately. "He is if Lillian decides he is. Personally I hope he's cross-eyed and has buck teeth."

"He won't have," Dorothy declared.

"Uhn-hunh! Got some inside info, eh?" They turned to her ready to tease, all but Martin.

"Yes I have—so there! Jeanie Baughman saw him this afternoon. But I'll get to meet him before she does!"

That salient fact brought forth due speculation—with Dorothy shrinking no whit under this male attention—and then Thad Moore suddenly proposed a diabolical scheme.

"Look!" said he with a partners-in-crime manner, glancing at the library door. "We've got to welcome this mug. Now here's what we can—" He explained in detail, his bright eyes filled with deviltry. Thad Monroe, who had come from California four years ago, was eternal spice in the younger set here.

All save Martin were enthusiastic. He held back, a trifle sullen as he often was. "Isn't that touching on a matter too serious for play?" he murmured.

"Don't be a droop!" ordered Dorothy, forcing him to agree.

They connived earnestly and when Lillian came back freshly powdered and with a somewhat dressier costume on, the atmosphere was literally charged with polite if positive intrigue. Under other circumstances Lillian would surely have sensed something. Now, her suspicions lay undisturbed, for she held the zest of anticipation. And even as she peered through the early spring darkness she saw a car pull up under the great oak where horses once had been tied but which was now called the Mayfield parking tree.

Dr. Dallas Tower was a man of noticeably long legs.

That much became apparent as the front porch lights first caught him striding up the brick walk. Steps of the mansion were a full hundred yards from the front gate, and the yard was still fenced in the happy old-fashioned way. Then the light revealed muscular shoulders, and a graceful gait even though he came rather slowly as if none too sure of himself. Lillian, peeking, decided he was probably shy. That was good. That would mean he was not too forward or nervy, as a stranger can sometimes be. She could do better with a quiet-natured man. Dorothy, peeping beside her, giggled.

"Hush, Baby Doll!" Lillian whispered loudly. "Must I call mother for you? If you don't act your age—"

She left the threat hanging, because Dr. Tower had stepped up onto the porch. Lillian smoothed her hair. Old Jason, ever omniscient, was rocking toward the door even before the caller rang. They all knew Dr. Tower would have to pass Jason's critical inspection. Jason Weems had been self-appointed guardian of the Mayfield girls' morals as well as physical welfare ever since Miss Millie's husband, beloved Dan Mayfield, died eleven years ago.

"Miss Lillian 'specting you, suh?" Jason eyed Dallas Tower.

"Yes, thank you, Jason." Lillian herself answered. "Dr. Tower, I'm so glad to know you! I am Lillian Mayfield, and it was good of Dr. Watkins to send you out."

"Miss Mayfield." He bowed in almost courtly manner, his eyes not leaving hers. Jason had literally to take the young man's hat. Then Dallas dropped her hand rather self-consciously. "I am truly indebted to Dr. Watkins. Very much so."

His voice was low. And deep. Not the lazy, lovely rumble that Thad Monroe and M. J. Parker often affected, but a basso from somewhere in Yankeeland, Lillian knew. He looked more mature than Thad or M. J. too. A bit older, like Martin, with Martin's same serious something in his brown eyes. But Dallas Tower was much handsomer. Much! His hair was black and defiantly wavy despite his obvious efforts to brush it down straight. He had—yes, even a cleft chin. The other boys would surely make meat of that, later. His lips were full and his skin a little more pale than a Texan's skin would be. But Lillian suddenly ended her own quick appraisal, realizing that she was being appraised in turn.

The other men were politeness itself. And Dorothy was sweet as pie to him. They ignored the invitation of waiting cards, electing to talk and get better acquainted: but half an hour later when courtesy permitted, Thad, M. J. and Martin arose quietly to go. Only decent move, they intimated, would be to allow the newcomer this one evening alone with the Mayfield girls; after that he could take his own chances. Lillian and Dorothy went to get their mother, Millicent Mayfield, who always came out to say goodnight—and in that brief interval of waiting the intrigue began!

"Lovely girl, Lillian," Martin Deale murmured to Dallas Tower too formally. "Glad you could arrive in time for our wedding."

"Oh." Dr. Tower looked his surprise. And disappointment. But M. J. had drifted near, and he maneuevered a private word with Dallas as casually as ever one could want.

"I'm anxious to know what you think of my fiancee, Dr. Towers!" M. J. purred. "Isn't she wonderful? I consider myself most fortunate!"

Dr. Towers looked quickly at him. But no! M. J. obviously was an innocent young swain, deeply in love and engaged. He gazed rhapsodically off into the Mayfield garden now. Dr. Tower swallowed. "I, uh, yes. Yes, indeed. I—" It occurred to the newcomer that he had misunderstood Martin Deale.

Thad Monroe was more subtle. Since the women folk lingered inside, he took his turn at Dallas by openly discussing economics. Then when the other boys had moved out of earshot and were talking to themselves, Thad addressed Dallas in sudden confidence.

"Dr. Tower, I'm glad a modern, up-to-date physician has come to Rangeville to practice. I am—well the fact is—I want you to give me a thorough personal examination. It's the only fair thing, I believe, to do this before we are married. Of course Lillian has not mentioned or even remotely intimated that I should do so, and it is not necessary that she be subjected to an examination of her own, but a man has to think of his bride's happiness before he—"

Dr. Tower's chin dropped. He looked quickly at Thad—whose face was a study in intentness and concern—but before either could speak again the women were upon them and good-nights were being said. Thad had timed his talk adroitly!

It was Lillian who five minutes later suggested that she and Dr. Tower drive out into the night. She would show him the town, she said. And privately, it was a graceful way to be rid of Baby Doll and mother, both obviously "taken" with the new young man.

His car was brand new, sporty in two-tone paint. Lillian settled down in it, talking easily.

"It doesn't quite match you, though, Dr. Tower," she was saying. "In fact it surprises me a little. You are rather more dignified than your car suggests."

Dallas Tower smiled broadly. "I've just been surprised myself. Your friend, they—well!"

"Surprised? How, Dr. Tower?"

He grinned again. "Never mind. I'll learn what the score is in due time, no doubt. You, uh, you have some devoted friends."

She considered that, glancing up at him from her corner of the broad seat. "Yes. They're so sweet. But—"

"One Night In Lisbon," wartime comedy showing at the Ritz, portrays the lighter side of the conflict. The fun starts when Fred MacMurray, an American aviator who ferries bombers across the Atlantic, falls in love with Madeleine Carroll, volunteer chauffeur to a British foreign office official. The action runs the gamut of London air-raid shelters to Lisbon's night life and the cast includes Billie Burke and Reginald Denny. "Devil Dogs of the Air," co-starring James Cagney and Pat O'Brien is the second picture.

Medical Story.

The exciting story of a young doctor who seeks quick money and then finds himself unable to break away from the gang with which he has allied himself is depicted in "Doctors Don't Tell," showing at the Park. John Beal plays the leading role and Florence Rice has the part of the girl he loves. Edward Norris and Grady Sutton are also cast. "Roar of the Press," the second picture shows how a newspaper reporter extricates himself from Fifth Columnists. Jean Parker and Jean Prouty are others in the cast.

Sothern In Comedy.

Ann Sothern continues her role of the showgirl, continually in need of a job, in "Maisie Was a Lady," showing at the Majestic. When she loses her spot in a sideshow through the fault of a playboy the latter gets her a job as maid in his home. Her unconventionalities shock her employers and furnish fun for the audience. Lew Ayres, Maureen O'Sullivan and C. Aubrey Smith are featured players. John Garfield in "East of the River," is the second attraction.

TOURIST BRINGS CANOE

CARLSBAD, N. M. —(U.P.)— A tourist came all the way from Virginia to see Carlsbad Cavern. When he drove up to the cave entrance, guides noticed a canoe strapped to the top of his car. They wondered if he had heard about the floods sweeping this part of the state.

STOCKS RESUME TREND TOWARD HIGHER LEVELS

Bidding Attributed To Better Foreign News; National Income Rise Estimated.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks continued to reach for moderately higher levels in today's market.

Although many leaders held to a narrow groove the gains of fractions to around a point were fairly well distributed near the second hour.

A little bidding was attributed to the slightly better foreign news, brokers said, although many potential purchasers inclined to move carefully pending Washington developments and more light on business trends.

Boardrooms discerned a grain of hope in the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said 'Opinion is growing that application of steel priorities will reveal that defense needs require considerably less proportion of output than has been thought" not being fully prepared to meet any condition that may arise in world affairs.

Notice was taken of revised estimates that this year's total national income would rise close to the $100,000,000,000 mark.

"The threat to our national security and to our way of life is not imaginary but real This hazard can fairly be appraised only when we appreciate the destruction, desolation and enslavement which have overtaken free people of other nations during recent years.

"Our nation throughout its existence has stood as a symbol of security and freedom It is our constant aim and our controlling purpose that these priceless rights and privileges accruing to American citizenship may above all be preserved and protected."

After National Commander Milo J Warner had read the president's message to the convention, Knox delivered an address in which he revealed that beginning tomorrow U S naval forces "will provide protection as adequate as we can make it" for ships carrying lend-lease supplies between the United States and waters around Iceland

'Our War' Wickard Tells Conference

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—(UP) —"This is our war—not someone elses war' Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard today told the first of a series of regional agricultural defense conferences

Speaking at a meeting of farm leaders and officials of 11 western states, Wickard declared that food is as important as armaments in winning the war and that farm production must be increased in pace with factory output

"It seems to me that the first thing to realize is that this is our war, not someone else's war—our war, because of the greedy aims of a certain man who has the most powerful military machine the world has ever known," he said.

FDR Directs Draft Of New Lease-Lend

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Preparing for the possibility of a long war, President Roosevelt today directed drafting of a new lend-lease bill appropriating an estimated $5 800,000 000 to keep a steady stream of American aid flowing to England through 1943 and 1944, if necessary

Congress began to receive word of the White House plans as it awaited Mr Roosevelt's second report on the first $7,000,000,000 bill to help Britain. It is understood that the President has just about completed the report and that it may be only a matter of hours before it is sent to congress.

Mr Roosevelt is presumed to have fully discussed the lend-lease report, plans to aid democracy and to speed up armament production, while cruising on Chesapeake bay over the week-end

Conferring with the president, who returned last night, were OPM Director-General William S Knudsen, Lend-Lease Supervisor Harry L Hopkins, Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson and Floyd Odlum, head of the new defense contract distrubution service

Most of the funds to be made available in the second lend-lease act is expected to be used for construction of tanks, ships, anti-aircraft guns, bombers and airplane parts It is to involve expansion or building of new tank factories and definitely include money for construction of new ways for ships, according to word going to congress
